Dr. Niall Mulchinock's primary research interests lie in the field of international relations, with a particular focus on how NATO has changed and adapted to the new global security environment that emerged after the end of the Cold War. He completed a BA at University College Cork, Ireland in 2005, followed by a Masters in 2006. He then undertook a PhD in the Department of Government, again at UCC, examining NATO's involvement in the stabilisation of the Western Balkans since the disintegration of Yugoslavia. He is currently employed as a lecturer within the Department of Government in UCC.
